David focuses his practice on civil litigation and has significant experience in defending cases on behalf of construction, trucking, transportation, retail, service, and healthcare entities. David's areas of practice range across the liability spectrum, including commercial transportation, product liability, professional liability, insurance and formerly workers' compensation defense.

David assists with cases through the SeniorLAW Center in Philadelphia, a nonprofit legal services agency that has to date provided representation to over 50,000 seniors in need. Weber Gallagher assists with this vital program as 20% of Philadelphia's senior citizens are economically vulnerable, have been victims of elder abuse and/or financial exploitation, and are taken advantage of by their landlords. David has experience with evictions, extending move-out dates and reducing back due payments to make it feasible for the elderly to stay in their homes, if possible, or to find other suitable accommodations.
