

Richard Ranieri successfully argues all levels of appellate court

Successfully argued through all levels of appellate court including successfully at the New Jersey Supreme Court, occupational toxic exposure case where worker sued employer, despite worker receiving workers compensation benefits, under dual recovery theory allowed for “reckless indifference” theories, for rectal cancer allegedly due to exposure to solvents and heavy metals.