

Joseph Borucki Defends Claim by House Cleaner

Successfully defended a claim by house cleaner against home owner for a workplace fall. The housecleaner alleged sustaining work related injuries on April 2, 2012, during the course of her job duties when she fell and injured her shoulder, arm and back. Defended issue on compensability. The housecleaner had $10,000 in bills with a doctor recommendation for rotator cuff surgery and a value between $50,000 and $100,000 overall. With help of the insured, we were able to convince the Judge that her work did not meet the statutory threshold and we settled for trial costs of $3,500 full and final Section 20.
