

01.23.14

Two Workers' Compensation Partners Join Weber Gallagher

Philadelphia, PA – January 23, 2014 – Peter M. Harrison joined Weber Gallagher today as partners in the Workers' Compensation Group. He was a principal in the Workers' Compensation Department at another Philadelphia firm. His clients include large healthcare companies, hospitals and significant multi-national corporations.

"Peter brings a wealth of knowledge and experience in workers' compensation matters and has attracted an excellent client following," said Paul Fires, Managing Partner of Weber Gallagher and Co-Chair of the firm's Workers' Compensation practice. "His practice operate at the highest level and they is a frequent speaker to industry groups seeking a deeper understanding of managing risk while controlling litigation costs in today's business environment."

Harrison, who has devoted his practice to Pennsylvania workers' compensation defense for more than 25 years, has successfully defended major healthcare systems, nursing homes, Fortune 500 manufacturing companies and insurance companies. He also wrote "A Guide to the Handling of Pennsylvania Workers' Compensation." Harrison is a 1985 graduate of Temple University School of Law and a 1981 graduate of Hobart College.

About Weber Gallagher

Weber Gallagher has more than 110 lawyers in 10 offices throughout the Mid-Atlantic Region. The firm provides legal counseling and representation to local, national and international businesses, financial institutions and insurance companies. To learn more, visit www.wglaw.com.